

April 2008

Leave for spouses of deployed military personnel

The new law allows:

- Spouses of military personnel deployed or on leave from deployment during times of military conflict to take 15 days unpaid leave from work.
- Leave is without pay, but accrued leave may be substituted.
- Leave for public employees who also serve in the reserves or national guard has been increased from 15 to 21 days.
- All employers, public and private, are covered, regardless of size.
- An employee is one who works on average 20 or more hours a week.
- Effective June 12, 2008

What is the new law?

A new law passed by the 2008 Legislature allows spouses of military personnel to take up to 15 days unpaid leave while their spouse is on leave from deployment, or before and up to deployment, during times of military conflict declared by the President or Congress.

An employee must provide his or her employer with notice of the employee's intention to take leave within five business days of receiving official notice that the employee's spouse will be on leave or of an impending call to active duty.

An employee may substitute accrued leave for any part of the family military leave.

An employee who takes family military leave is entitled to job protection and the same benefits as under the state Family Leave Act.

Who is covered?

An employee is defined as a person who works an average of 20 or more hours weekly, excluding independent contractors.

An employer is any person, firm, corporation, partnership or other business entity, state agencies and institutions, and local government.

What is L&I's role?

L&I's role is to inform employers and workers about the new law through outreach and education. Complaints filed by employees will be investigated, and L&I will enforce job protection for employees who need this leave.
